

New measures to help woodlands through improved deer management

One-third of England's woodlands now estimated to be damaged by deer, with urgent action needed to protect trees and wildlife