

New MHRA-supported research reveals patterns of vaccine-derived poliovirus spread and implications for global eradication efforts

Study provides crucial insights for targeting rapid response strategies and improving polio surveillance worldwide