

New online appeals service launching for all local planning authorities

The Planning Inspectorate's new digital appeals service is being rolled out nationally following successful pilot with five London boroughs.