

New online tool to help working families make the most of shared parental leave

The new tool will help expectant parents share time off in the early stages of their baby's life, allowing them to check eligibility and the pay they'd be entitled to.