

New report: regulation helping protect against climate change

High rate of regulatory performance in England is helping fight climate change impacts, but more must be done to secure a healthy environment, says EA report