

New satellite deal to boost military operations, jobs and growth

Armed forces personnel will have access to the latest space-based imagery for military operations, following a deal signed for a new satellite system, named Oberon.