

New space system will better protect UK satellites as new imagery released

Vital emergency services, military operations and British businesses will be better protected through a new system to protect UK satellites and the services they provide from space.