

New summer surveys to try to identify cause of crayfish deaths

The Environment Agency is carrying out a series of summer surveys to try to identify the cause of unusual symptoms in an endangered native species.