

New UK Town of Culture competition to celebrate our national story

The contributions of towns across the UK to our national life will be celebrated through a new competition, the Culture Secretary has announced today.