

New Women's Employment Ambassador role announced as millions of working women set to benefit from landmark workplace health drive

Leading women's health campaigner and broadcaster Mariella Frostrup has been appointed as the Government's Women's Employment Ambassador, a newly created role to support working women across the country.