

News story: Flood risk continues with further rain expected across England

The Environment Agency warns that a significant flood risk will remain for the next few days in parts of England due to the impacts of recent rain and some snowmelt.