

NHS patients receive first home-grown blood plasma treatments

The first NHS patients in a generation have started to receive life saving plasma from the blood of UK donors.