

Non-human primates used in service licences: holding response

The Home Office has sent a holding response to the Animals in Science Committee's advice on non-human primates used in service licences.