

Ofsted announces new pilot to use more serving school and college leaders as inspectors

Ofsted today announced that it is piloting a new way of involving more serving education leaders in the inspections of schools and further education providers.