

Preserving our water resources in a changing climate – industry and government tackle threat to future water supplies

The Environment Agency and partners from across the water industry set out how the action we need to take to meet our future water needs.