

Press release: Recreational sea anglers are calling for greater consideration of their needs and better regulation of commercial fishing practices, says new study.

New research by Substance and Centre for Environment, Fisheries & Aquaculture Science (Cefas), funded by Defra, has provided insight into what recreational sea anglers value most when considering fisheries management.