

Prime Minister seeks a new social and behavioural scientist to join the Council for Science and Technology

The Council for Science and Technology (CST), which serves as the government's highest-level advisory council on science and technology, is seeking a new member with social and behavioural science expertise.