

Record number of knives taken off streets as knife murders plummet

An unprecedented number of deadly knives have been taken off the streets as knife murders plummet after the government's first year in office.