

Reynolds: Farmers central to Britain's food security, rural economy and countryside

New Board will put farming at the heart of government decision making and back growth for British farmers