

Rule change to support police facing dangerous situations

The legal test for the use of force in police misconduct cases will be returned to the criminal law test to build officer and public trust in policing.