

Science advice helping shape the health and social care workforce of the future

How science advice helped shape new research priorities, funding and pandemic preparedness for the future health and social care workforce.