

While Labour make promises, we're getting on with delivering progress in Scotland

Jeremy Corbyn is today making his keynote speech that will close Labour's annual conference. His speech made a raft of promises – many of them for policies that are being delivered here in Scotland right now.

Go to Source

Author:

...Read More »

Labour more shameless than the Tories on Brexit

Just when you thought the UK Government's shambolic Brexit negotiations couldn't get any worse, we had the embarrassing spectacle of the EU summit in Salzburg. Theresa May had to be told, once again, that her universally panned Chequers plan was dead in the water.

Go to Source

Author:

...Read More »

For Yes to win next time, and there will be a next time, we too need to up our game

I was encouraged this week to hear from Sky News about their plans to set up an independent commission to oversee Leaders Debates in future General Elections.

Go to Source

Author:

...Read More »

Our plan for Scotland: Delivering for all communities

Nicola Sturgeon has announced the Scottish Government's plan for the next year – the Programme for Government. Here are just some of the things the SNP Scottish Government is doing to support Scotland's diverse communities.

Go to Source

Author:

...Read More »

Broken promises by Tories and No campaign since #IndyRef

It has now been four years since Scotland was told by the Tory Westminster government and No campaign that in 2014 the way to protect Scotland's place in Europe was to vote No, we now find ourselves being dragged out of the EU against our will and towards an extreme...Read More »

Older Entries »