

Southwold bathing waters classified as excellent and good

99% of bathing waters in England have passed water quality standards following testing at over 400 designated sites carried out by the Environment Agency.