

Space firms to scale-up and thrive in Britain with government backing for bolder strategy

A bolder approach to space strategy will see £500 million allocated to national programmes to back high-growth technologies and help British companies scale and compete on the international stage.