

Supporting stronger, more resilient UK supply chains

The Government Office for Science has published a new Foresight report setting out an evidence-based approach to support government in strengthening the resilience of UK supply chains.