Employers, contractors and employees should be aware of electrical safety at work during rainstorm

As the rainstorm warning has been issued by the Hong Kong Observatory, the Labour Department (LD) reminds employers and contractors that they should adopt necessary work arrangements and take suitable safety measures to protect the safety of their employees when they are carrying out electrical work or handling electrical plant.

A spokesman for the LD said today (September 17) that employers and contractors should avoid assigning employees to carry out electrical work (like electric arc welding work) or handle electrical plant at places affected by rainstorms, and should refer to the "Code of Practice in Times of Adverse Weather and 'Extreme Conditions'" and the "Guide on Safety at Work in times of Inclement Weather" issued by the LD.

Even if electrical work is carried out or electrical plant is handled at places not affected by the rainstorm, suitable safety measures must still be adopted to prevent electric shock as the air would be more humid. Such measures include:

- (i) Ensure that all live parts of an electrical installation are isolated from the power supply source and rendered dead, and the isolation from the power supply source must be maintained as long as electrical work is being carried out;
- (ii) Before carrying out any electrical work or handling any electrical plant, cut off and lock out the power supply source, then test the circuit concerned to confirm it is dead and display suitable warning notices, and issue a work permit thereafter;

(iii) Ensure that protective devices (such as suitable and adequate fuses and circuit breakers) for the electrical installations or electrical plant have been installed and maintained in good working order, and portable electric tools must be double-insulated or properly earthed;

(iv) Provide suitable personal protective equipment such as insulating gloves and insulating mats for employees; and

(v) If live electrical work is unavoidable, a comprehensive risk assessment should be conducted by a competent person and the appropriate safety precautions should be taken to remove or properly control the electrical hazards involved before such work can proceed.

In addition, employees should co-operate with the employer or contractor to follow the safety instructions and use the safety equipment provided.

The LD has published guidebooks and leaflets on electrical work safety. These safety publications are available free from divisional offices of the department or can be downloaded from its website (www.labour.gov.hk/eng/public/content2_8.htm).

Should there be any questions about occupational safety and health matters, please contact the Occupational Safety Officer of the LD at 2559 2297.

Wide array of activities to be held in celebration of 75th anniversary of founding of People's Republic of China

In celebration of the 75th anniversary of the founding of the People's Republic of China (PRC), the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (HKSAR) Government and different sectors of the community will launch a series of diverse celebratory activities and special offers for members of the public to participate in and celebrate National Day together.

The Chief Secretary for Administration, Mr Chan Kwok-ki, accompanied by the Deputy Chief Secretary for Administration, Mr Cheuk Wing-hing; the Secretary for Culture, Sports and Tourism, Mr Kevin Yeung; the Secretary for Home and Youth Affairs, Miss Alice Mak; and the Director of Home Affairs, Mrs Alice Cheung, held a press conference today (September 17) to introduce various celebratory events, city dress-up and special offers in celebration of National Day this year.

Mr Chan said that this year marks the 75th anniversary of the founding of the PRC, an important milestone in the country's development. This is also the first National Day since the HKSAR Government improved district governance and completed the enactment of legislation on Article 23 of the Basic Law, making it even more meaningful. The HKSAR Government has spared no effort in planning a wide array of rich, diverse and creative celebratory activities for members of the public to share the joy of National Day and foster a sense of patriotism in the community. It is hoped that these celebratory events and special offers will boost local consumption and showcase to visitors the unique advantages and charm of Hong Kong, highlighting the staunch support it has received from the motherland and its global outlook.

In the morning of National Day, the HKSAR Government will hold a flag-raising ceremony and National Day reception. A large-scale fireworks display will also take place over Victoria Harbour that evening. Mr Chan said the Government and various sectors of the community will organise more than 400 celebratory activities before and after National Day to share the joy with members of the public and spread the festive atmosphere of National Day to every corner of the community. Many of these activities are novel and unique. For example, on the night of September 30 (the eve of National Day), a special event titled "Celebration of National Day – The Next Generation Chorus Performance" will be held in the outdoor area of the West Kowloon Cultural District, featuring a drone show with a record-breaking 2 099 drones (symbolising the "2024" in the year of 2024 plus the "75" from the 75th National Day) to celebrate National Day with the public. The elements and features of the number "75" will also be incorporated into various signature events. The 18 District Offices, together with District Councils and local groups, will organise signature events with local characteristics. In addition, some of the events are designed for the youth, aiming to promote patriotism and instil the spirit of Chinese culture, thereby deepening patriotic sentiments among young people.

Mr Chan also introduced a rich array of special offers rolled out by different sectors of the community as led by the Government, covering areas including public transport, culture, arts and leisure, dining and consumption, as well as reward activities, encouraging public participation to share in the joy of National Day while boosting local consumption.

Various bureaux and departments will showcase more than 185 000 pieces of festive displays for National Day, including national flags, regional flags, giant banners, large stickers, posters, lamppost buntings, electronic screens, flower plaques and lighting. For the first time, outdoor areas of 75 government properties were selected to install tilted flagpoles to display national and regional flags to enhance the festive atmosphere.

Mr Cheuk also introduced the diverse signature events organised by various bureaux and departments, including themed carnivals, fun days, featured markets, cultural and arts activities, large-scale exhibitions, and activities specially arranged for people in need. Mr Cheuk said that since this year marks the 75th anniversary of the founding of the PRC, various bureaux and departments have added special elements related to the number "75" in these signature events, making them more attractive and meaningful. The "1st October Movie Fiesta: Half-Price Spectacular 2024" will celebrate with the public through half-price movie

Special cultural performances will be arranged to enable members of the public and tourists to experience a rich variety of customs and unique cultures from across the country.

The Home and Youth Affairs Bureau will organise exchange tours to the Mainland as celebratory events specifically for the youth, allowing them to deepen their understanding of the country's developments and achievements while fostering patriotism. Through exchanges with university students there, participating youths will learn about the history and development of the motherland, strengthening their sense of belongings and pride in their country.
