Green Party responds to Labour's education plans

10 May 2017

The Green Party has said Labour's plans for education [1] are not bold enough to fix the broken system.

Vix Lowthion, Green Party education spokesperson and Isle of Wight candidate, said:

"Labour's plans for education would simply pump more money into a broken system. There is no doubt schools need proper funding but on top of this the Green Party has bold plans to overhaul education so every parent can be sure their child will get the best start in life. We would bring free schools and academies back under the control of local authorities so they can be held to account and get rid of the relentless and counter-productive testing of teachers and pupils. This would free schools up to stop teaching to the test and instead give children and young people an education that prepares them for life."

Notes:

- 1. https://www.theguardian.com/politics/2017/may/09/labour-pledges-6bn-annual-boost-to-school-budgets#img-1
- 2. Vix Lowthion is Green Party education spokesperson and candidate for the Isle of Wight, where she is a secondary school teacher.

Tweet

Back to main news page

Let's block ads! (Why?)

Green Party pledges equal treatment for physical and mental health

10 May 2017

*Greens announce three mental health policies in Worcester

*Co-leader Jonathan Bartley: "We must support those who are suffering — very often alone and in silence — with the weight of a mental health illness"

The Green Party has announced three mental health pledges in Worcester today [1], promising to tackle Britain's growing mental health crisis by to giving mental health parity of esteem with physical health and ensuring everyone gets the treatment they need.

The Greens will also introduce awareness and empathy education to help prevent bullying and school-based therapy to treat mental health earlier.

The announcement comes during Mental Health Awareness Week [2], which runs from May 8 to 14.

The Green Party will pledge to:

- Give mental health parity of esteem with physical health
- Make sure everyone who needs psychological therapy receives it within 28 days of being referred
- Roll out of new school-based therapy to treat mental ill health earlier and awareness and empathy education to limit the likelihood of bullying

New figures released last month show mental health budgets are being cut by £4.5m in five English regions this year [3], despite the Conservative Party promising to up spending [4]. Three in four people who need mental health support are not getting it [5] and between 2013 and 2016 the amount of the health budget spent on mental health fell from 1.4% to 0.7% [6].

Jonathan Bartley, Green Party co-leader, said:

"We must put the wellbeing of people ahead of the Conservative Party's destruction of our public services. The Green Party will make sure mental health is treated with equal seriousness to that of physical health so that we can finally support those who are suffering — very often alone and in silence — with the weight of a mental health illness.

"The Greens are committed to creating a caring Britain that looks after people with mental health problems and our plan for schools will build a society where people look out for each other. We won't just treat illness but reverse the Tory Government's failed policies to tackle the factors that contribute to poor mental health, like housing shortages, rising poverty and cuts to public services."

Notes:

- 1. Jonathan Bartley, co-leader, and Amelia Womack, deputy leader, announced the policies in Fort Royal Park, Worcester.
- 2. https://www.mentalhealth.org.uk/campaigns/mental-health-awareness-week
- 3. http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-england-merseyside-39702976
- 4. http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-politics-39832997
- 5. https://www.theguardian.com/society/2016/feb/13/mental-health-services-crisis-britain-revealed-leaked-report
- 6. https://www.mind.org.uk/news-campaigns/news/charity-reveals-shocking-spend-of-less-than-1-per-cent-on-public-mental-health/#.WRGnIVXyuUn

Tweet

Back to main news page

Let's block ads! (Why?)

Lucas: Labour and Lib Dems have
'betrayed the people they represent'

- 9 May 2017
- * Lucas exposes the extent of other parties failure to back electoral alliances
- * Green leader says her party will shift focus from alliances to 'winning votes up and down the country'
- * Lucas slams Labour's 'shameful' treatment of members wanted to form an alliance against Jeremy Hunt

Caroline Lucas, the co-leader of the Green Party, has slammed both Labour and the Lib Dem's leadership for failing to fully engage with the idea of electoral alliances despite the strong wishes of their members and the wider public.

Yesterday the Labour Party suspended Steve Williams, a member in Surrey who had advocated for an alliance around a pro-NHS candidate to beat Jeremy Hunt. [1]

Lucas has been at the forefront of efforts to push both Labour and Lib Dems to work together to improve the chances of beating the Tories at the next election and secure a fair voting system for future elections. However, the grassroots campaign have been frustrated by both parties. Labour refused to even meet with the Greens and the Lib Dems engaged but only at an arms length.

The Green Party has stood aside in a number of strategically important seats — thus boosting the chances of candidates such as Lib Dem Sarah Olney in Richmond and Labour's Rupa Hug in Ealing.

With Labour and the Lib Dems failing to engage with electoral alliances, and nominations for candidates closing this week, the Green Party co-leader says her party will now 'move on from alliances' and redouble efforts to win votes across the country.

Lucas said:

"Both Labour and the Lib Dems have betrayed the people they represent by not fully engaging with the idea of electoral alliances. Though the Lib Dems were happy to have informal discussion, they never delivered on ruled any meaningful alliances. Labour were even more intransigent — with no hint from their leadership that they were interested in talking about how we best beat this rotten Tory Government.

"Labour's treatment of Steve Williams in Surrey is both shameful and shortsighted. There was a real chance to unite around a pro-NHS candidate to beat Jeremy Hunt, but Labour might well have now blown it."

"Labour and the Lib Dems defied their own members on the ground — and the time has now come for the Greens to focus entirely on winning votes up and down the country.

"Electoral alliances matter because we have a broken political system. We have a Government hellbent on some of the most extreme policies in a generation: a crumbling NHS, a jilted generation of young people being let down and the pursuit of a hardline extreme Brexit. Our hugely undemocratic electoral system is so stacked in the establishment's favour that the Tories can win a majority on just 24% of the eligible vote. It's abundantly clear that to crack open our politics we must hack the system and create a more plural politics.

"Having done what we can, our focus is now entirely on winning votes up and down the country — and sending more MPs to Parliament on June 8th. The other parties have proved in recent weeks that they aren't fit for the modern political age — and in this election we're offering voters a chance to back a politics which puts people first to deliver a confident and caring country.

[1] https://twitter.com/SteveWil/status/861655164549312512

Tweet

Back to main news page

Let's block ads! (Why?)

Green Party reacts with anger to latest BBC breach of duty of impartiality

8 May 2017

*Co-leader Jonathan Bartley: "This is getting beyond a joke. The BBC's love affair with UKIP is getting embarrassing"

The Green Party has reacted with anger to an announcement today (May 8) that the BBC will feature the leader of UKIP in two dedicated election programmes but will not extend the same invitation to the Green Party.

Today's announcement came just days after the BBC breached its own guidelines [1] by giving disproportionate coverage to UKIP when reporting the results of local elections last Thursday. The Green Party has already lodged a formal complaint over the BBC's failure to give the Green Party coverage "proportionate to the larger parties" and "more than those parties with less evidence of past or current electoral support or fewer candidates".

Today the BBC announced [3] that Paul Nuttall will be interviewed by Andrew Neil in one of a series of prime time programmes each evening at 7pm throughout the week of 22 May. In addition Mr Nuttall will also be the subject of an 'Election Questions' programme on BBC1 on 4 June.

Jonathan Bartley, Green Party co-leader, said:

"This is getting beyond a joke. The BBC's love affair with UKIP is getting embarrassing" and it is time it recognised that the Green Party is entitled to a fair hearing in its election programming."

"As the local election results, in which 150,000 people voted Green compared with less than 100,000 for UKIP [3], demonstrated, when people see what we stand for, they support the Green Party. It's time the BBC recognised the strength of the Green movement and the widespread support for our positive vision for Britain as a confident and caring country. It is time to stop giving so much air time to UKIP."

Notes:

1. http://downloads.bbc.co.uk/guidelines/editorialguidelines/pdfs/2017localelectionguidelines.pdf

- 2. http://www.bbc.co.uk/mediacentre/latestnews/2017/general-election?ns_mchan-nel=social&ns_campaign=bbc_press_office&ns_source=twitter&ns_linkname=corpora-te
- 3. http://britainelects.com/results/may2017/

Tweet

Back to main news page

Let's block ads! (Why?)

Green Party slams Conservative migration target

8 May 2017

The Green Party has condemned the alleged Conservative Party manifesto pledge to cut net migration to tens of thousands [1].

Jonathan Bartley, Green Party co-leader, said:

"The Tories have repeatedly failed to reach this target since it was first in their manifesto in 2010 but in the process have split up families and encouraged hostility towards migrants.

"It's time the Conservative Party stopped trying to pin the blame for unemployment, the housing shortage and NHS overcrowding on migrants and acknowledged the abject failure of its own policies, cuts and severe underinvestment."

Notes:

1. http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-politics-39840503

Tweet

Back to main news page

Let's block ads! (Why?)