

Tougher rules on political interference to keep UK elections secure

Foreign actors will no longer be able to use their money to interfere in the UK's elections, as part of the biggest expansion of democratic participation in a generation