

UK and Germany deepen science and tech ties with £14 million to unlock quantum's vast potential

The UK and Germany have announced plans to work even more closely together to unlock the vast potential of quantum technology.