

UK backs next-generation satellite communications with £6.9 million investment

The UK Space Agency is investing £6.9 million in satellite technology that will transform connectivity and secure Britain's place as a European space leader.