

UK building closer ties with Syria, supporting accountability and regional security

Minister for the Middle East visited Syria to reiterate UK support for political transition, with a focus on security and accountability