

UK government seeks out quantum industry experts for advisory board to accelerate deployment of game-changing technology

Key specialists are being called upon to join a board advising the UK government in seizing the transformative potential of quantum technologies today.