

UK invests in next generation of research talent to tackle drug and alcohol addiction

People suffering with addiction will have a ramped-up support system as UK government tackles the country's critical shortage of world-class researchers in addiction healthcare.