

UK response to national security emergency tested through nationwide exercise

More than 120 members of the armed forces, policing and government have taken part in an exercise to practise responding to a national security emergency.