

UK takes lead in protecting developing countries from debt crises

Developing countries will be able to respond faster to economic crises through new proposals developed by the London Coalition and driven by the UK government.