The Government urgently needs a new approach to tackling acid attacks – Diane Abbott

Diane Abbott MP, Labour's Shadow Home Secretary, responding to the acid attacks that took place across London yesterday evening, said:

"The recent spate of acid attacks have shocked the nation, but sadly they are nothing new. With a steady rise in attacks since 2010 and a steep increase of 70 per cent from 2015 to 2016, it is clear that the Government urgently needs a new approach to tackling this heinous crime.

"Just like knives and guns, acid is being used in murders, robberies and rapes. The problem is the weapon of choice is often a common household product.

With very few prosecutions it is clear that we do not have the tools necessary to investigate and prevent these attacks.

"While the Tories arrogantly insist that they have protected the police budget, the reality is they have cut numbers by over 20,000, leaving our forces overstretched as they work tirelessly to keep the public and our communities safe."

Warm words won't tackle the drugs crisis – Diane Abbott

Diane

Abbott MP, Labour's Shadow Home Secretary, responding to the launch of the Government's new drugs strategy, said:

"Rising

drug-related fatalities, drug crime and a cocktail of new drugs means that a new effective strategy is overdue. But this isn't it.

"Commitments to treat addiction and tackle the social ills that accompany it are meaningless from a Government which has cut drug treatment services and centres. There is no new money now.

"At

the same time, this Tory Government expects law enforcement agencies to deal with multiple new drugs and sources of supply, but has spent seven years slashing funding to the police and border force with further cuts in the pipeline.

"Warm

words won't tackle the drugs crisis. Resources are needed, and mustn't be diverted from other hard-pressed budgets. Labour in government will tackle the drugs crisis and review the priorities to ensure they are appropriate."

Grenfell survivors are clear: A full immigration amnesty is needed – Diane Abbott

"This

testimony was from a survivor was moving and very brave.

"She was very clear. The Government's offer of a 12-month immigration reprieve is completely inadequate. Despite all they have gone through, it could still result in deportation.

"Labour is very clear. We continue to argue for a full immigration amnesty for survivors and indefinite leave to remain, which is in the gift of the Home Secretary. Otherwise survivors and their families may never come forward to get the support they need.

"The Government has already failed Grenfell residents in so many ways. It should do the decent thing and remove the threat of deportation hanging over a small number of deeply traumatised people."

Despite this U-turn the Government is still not doing enough to unleash the potential of SMEs – Rebecca Long-Bailey

Rebecca Long-Bailey MP, Labour's Shadow Secretary of State for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy, commenting on the Government's U-turn on their Making Tax Digital policy, said:

"Today's Government U-turn is a victory for small businesses across the country. As recognised by the Federation of Small Businesses, the Labour Party has consistently called on the Government to rethink their Making Tax Digital policy; the Labour Manifesto committed to scrapping quarterly reporting for companies under the VAT threshold.

"Despite this U-turn the Government is still not doing enough to unleash the potential of SMEs. The promised transitional business rates relief has still not materialised and they are failing to take meaningful action on the scourge of late payments.

"Only Labour has a clear plan to support the UK's small businesses including improved access to finance for SMEs, radically reforming business rates and declaring war on late payments.''
