

The Government have no plan and no idea

Michel Barnier has warned that a transition period immediately after Brexit is 'not a given' and that he did not understand some of the UK's positions on Brexit.

Go to Source

Author:

Exit from Brexit: campaign in a box

Things are changing. More and more people are waking up to the need for a new vote on the final Brexit deal.

Even Nigel Farage is!

What we all agree on is that Theresa May and her Brexit Conservative government are failing badly on the negotiations with the European Union.

Half the country wants to remain in the EU and the Liberal Democrats have not given up on them.

Go to Source

Author:

Government must wake up to crisis facing NHS as A&E wait times hit record levels

NHS A&E waiting times have hit the worst levels on record.

This is yet more evidence of the growing crisis in our health and social care services, where staff are being put under great pressure and quality of care for patients is suffering.

When will the Government wake up to the fact that they urgently need to commit additional funding?

Go to Source

Author:

Lord Alderdice's report on Race, Ethnic Minorities and the Culture of the Liberal Democrats

If we look around us at our fellow Party members, elected representatives and spokespersons, we can see there is a problem: we are not as diverse in our race and ethnic minority profile as the communities we want to represent.

Despite our clear liberal values, rejecting all forms of prejudice and inequality, the Party has failed to engage sufficiently with BAME communities.

Our commitment to liberal values is not in doubt, but what we're doing isn't working.

Go to Source

Author:

Prime Minister's non-answer can only infer our NHS is indeed for sale under the Conservatives

At PMQs today, I asked the Prime Minister to confirm that the NHS would not be up for sale in any US trade deal negotiations.

Theresa May failed to give such a guarantee.

Go to Source

Author: