

Boris must show he's not Trump's poodle and cancel state visit

Boris Johnson has said Donald Trump's state visit is likely to go ahead in 2018 rather than this year, while admitting the US President got it "totally wrong" on Charlottesville.

Go to Source

Author:

Bogus student visa figures "happened on May's watch"

Only 4,600 international students overstayed their visas last year, less than a twentieth of the previous estimates of 100,000, official figures released today have revealed.

Go to Source

Author:

Government must get its hands dirty and intervene in our broken housing market

Quarterly housebuilding statistics released today by the Department of Communities and Local Government show that just 40,310 were built in the last quarter

Go to Source

Author:

Migration stats show Brexodus of EU workers

Quarterly migration data published today by the Office for National Statistics show another significant rise in EU citizens leaving the UK, up 33,000 to 122,000.

Go to Source

Author:

GCSE results – government used students as guinea pigs

I hope students and their families have every reason to celebrate today.

Go to Source

Author: