

UKAEA develops 3D printing for fusion components

UKAEA's new additive manufacturing – also known as 3D printing – machines offer new opportunities to produce highly specialised components for fusion machines.