

World's first national network for quantum standards to boost UK leadership and trade in groundbreaking future tech

A new national network to coordinate standards for the quantum technologies that will revolutionise everything from medicine to banking and transport.