We can all agree that 2020, was an unexpected challenge in many ways. A challenge that looks to continue well into 2021. If you are relatively static in your work or domestic location, you are largely immune to the daily management challenges that welters have had to, and still do, wrestle with on a daily basis - all dramatically heightened by the covid pandemic.

Added to the obvious scenario of pressure, is the fact that, as a manufacturing organisation, designing and installing cemetery and crematoria interment systems and providing support through service and care, we require a hybrid of challenge and personal dedication from every conceived resource.

The additional challenges that we have overcome during this time of uncertainty and worry are numerous and, although some were to be expected, we have encountered many that could not have been predicted.

As may be expected, along with the saddening and ever increasing rise in daily death toll due to covid, so comes the increase in demand for interment systems. In response, we have increased our investment risk to maximise our tooling and systems, increasing our production capacity. This, in turn, has necessitated the increase in workforce and training to ensure we have the necessary personnel to facilitate the use of these new systems.

Our status as key workers allows us to persevere throughout lockdown. However, with the daily uncertainty resultant from personnel self isolating and the need to accommodate part time hours due to child care issues as a result of the schools being off, this time also provides it's own set of challenges. Every day, there is no certainty as to how many of our personnel will be available to work and, if they are not, how long they will be absent.

The ever changing government guidelines and policies are extensive. Throughout the last year, with country wide lockdowns, local lockdowns and negotiating a tiered system of guidelines throughout the country, the planning, control and distribution of our workforce has provided us with our own management challenges. It is essential to ensure that all personnel are updated constantly to make certain that the correct guidelines are being followed in each location that we are working.

Regardless of the ongoing struggles as a result of the pandemic, welters have continued to do what we do best. The ongoing production of all full body and cremated remains interment facilities has been essential. All our products and systems can be installed together, in any configuration or layout, designed to best suit the needs of our customers, to create the welters® Cemetery Village® concept. Previously unusable land can be transformed into attractive cemeteries and cemetery extensions, creating interment positions where none were possible in the existing land prior to our involvement.

Rain, Shine & Snow

Work progresses through rain, shine – and snow! As our operative sweeps aside the snow, allowing work to continue on each grave position, he is joined by a nosy fox wandering leisurely through the site, reminding us to ‘go where we are appreciated, not where we are tolerated’.
